Tea Kangasvieri, FM, IKI project coordinator

The aim of this workshop is to share insights from a project on teachers as language education innovators in Finland. Since 2018, the IKI project has been mapping and sharing language-based innovations that teachers have developed across Finland. These innovations come from a wide range of educational settings, with younger and older students, and include a range of language education approaches such as language-showers, language-enriched and CLIL education. With the unexpected arrival of Covid 19, educators have had to find new ways of innovating and supporting student development. We will briefly provide some background information on language education in Finland and the important role languages play in the Finnish curriculum.
